Qatar's track and field stars arrive at Olympic Village

Tokyo Olympics: Japan's gymnast Rikako Ikee said she could not compete in the women's all-around final set for Wednesday due to a right leg injury. The 19-year-old gymnast, who suffered a fall during an apparatus final on Sunday, said she had been taking part in training for the event, but was now experiencing pain in her right knee. She said her right leg was swollen and that she had been unable to put any weight on it.

Armor, ridden by Jockey Ryan Moore, won impressively by three lengths, and went on to score by three lengths in the third race in the card at Goodwood Festival yesterday.

"I will fight tooth and nail to try to win the Olympic title in this place in three consecutive years," the 29-year-old said. "I have a lot of confidence in this place and I am ready to represent Qatar.""

Richardson fires Brazil into quarters, Germany out

R ebecca Richardson converted a double break lead in her third-round women’s tennis singles match against Germany’s Julia von Steuben to reach the last eight at the Tokyo Olympics on Thursday. The Australian, seeded 12th, claimed victory 6-4, 6-2 in 79 minutes, and will face her compatriot Ashleigh Barty in the quarter-finals.

Richardson, 26, secured a 3-0 lead after coming through four sets of tiebreaks in an opening round match against Kristina Mladenovic of France. She said her back was sore during the opening set, but had no issues with the heat.

Barty, the world No. 1, won her opening two matches in straight sets, but had to come from a set down against Veronika Kudermetova of Russia in the last 16.
